What does IFATE mean?

Ifate is Kinyarwanda and means "restrain from". The message is to call upon citizens to restrain from bribing and corruption.

"IFATE" is a digital system for reporting cases of corruption. Complaints and information on corruption can be transmitted via an online form, per SMS / WhatsApp to a database operated by Transparency International Rwanda (TI-RW)

IFATE NEXT GENERATION

GOAL

The overall goal of IFATE is to create a platform where citizens can report corruption for free. With this, TI-RW can further gain information on systemic corruption and injustice and use the information to improve evidence-based advocacy.

THE IMPACT

The tool has proven to be a platform for citizens to provide information on systemic corruption, higher level cases and corruption loopholes.

By ensuring a certain level of anonymity, the citizens' reluctance to report corruption cases has been reduced significantly. The system allows breaking down the corruption reports into different categories, institutions and locations, but most importantly it allows getting complaints from whistle-blowers who give information on corrupt behavior—a kind of information which is often not forwarded by other complaint channels.

For those who can't access internet, the reporting mechanism was made available even to poorer groups of the population in the rural areas by relying on different communication channels.

ABOUT TRANSPARENCY INTERNATIONAL RWANDA

Transparency International Rwanda is a Rwandan civil society organization created in 2004. It is the leading civil society organization in the fight against corruption in Rwanda.

TI-Rw became accredited as national chapter of Transparency International in September 2011 and is since then part of the Transparency International movement with over a hundred national chapters worldwide and a coordinating Secretariat located in Berlin, Germany.
